License switch / provision of software

A license switch (change of hardware on which the contractual software is used or a change of the hardware's operating system) shall only be carried out for a separate charge. If there is reason to suspect that the software is being misused, T-Systems shall refuse to switch the license. No charge shall be levied if an agreement with enhanced support services (support package) is concluded.

The software shall be made available on the T-Systems ServiceNet (<https://vwgroup.t-systems.com>) for downloading. The software is intended for use on specific operating systems; there shall be no contractual guarantee that the software will function on other operating systems without impairments. Information about the compatible operating systems can be found at <https://vwgroup.t-systems.com/faq>. The customer shall have no right to the porting of the software for other operating systems.

Miscellaneous

The "General Terms and Conditions for Software Leasing," which are accepted with this Agreement, can be found at <http://vwgroup.t-systems.com/productgtcs>, and which may be supplied in written form upon request by the customer, shall apply in addition to this "Agreement on the leasing of _____ and the provision of support services"; if the support package is ordered, the "General Terms and Conditions for Work and Services" shall also apply.
